Re: Reference for John New

To whom it may concern

John New joined our Westpac documentation project in April 2007 as a technical writer. John was asked to develop procedures to keystroke level for a number of teams associated with back-office processing in the finance sector.

John has been integral to this project. His work is immaculate, his attention to detail impeccable and his ability to deal with complex issues has been fundamental to being able to deliver on time and within budget.

This has been an extremely large, complex and often demanding project. In the time I have known John I can say, without hesitation, that he has remained focussed, highly professional and extremely reliable.

It has been a pleasure working with John and I would not hesitate to recommend him to any potential employer.
